ATHLETIC TRAINER

The College Community welcomes Mr. James E. Wilson as the new Athletic Trainer. The keen interest as well as the growth in the men's and women's intercollegiate and intramural sports programs at The Newport College - Salve Regina during the past two years has prompted the College Administration to hire an Athletic Trainer.

Mr. Wilson will be the athletic trainer for all of the men's and women's varsity sports. He will be present at all athletic events to lend assistance in case of emergencies and to provide first aid and medical care to players. He will also care for injured players after athletic events in the new training room in Mercy Hall which will have a whirlpool tub, refrigerator and first aid supplies.

Mr. Wilson is presently a science teacher at Thompson Jr. High School in Newport, and resides in Middletown with his wife and two children. James Wilson received his Bachelor of Science Degree in Physical Education at the University of Michigan and his Master of Science Degree at the University of Rhode Island. While at the University of Michigan he was on a college scholarship as a student trainer for four years. He was a full-time athletic trainer for one full year after graduation at the University of Michigan. Prior to college, Jim was a Physical Therapy assistant in the U.S. Army.
